The TRIPS Agreement Convention and the Integration of Intellectual Property Law:

Convergence or Controversy?

PRESENTED BY THOMAS JEFFERSON SCHOOL OF LAW CENTER FOR LAW AND INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

April 8th, 2011

Increasingly, as the world becomes a smaller place with advanced communications systems and faster global travel, intellectual property rights affect our technologically advanced marketplace.

The TRIPS agreement, adopted by member countries in 1994 endeavors to promote adequate protection of intellectual property rights while simultaneously ensuring the rights themselves do not become an impediment to global commerce.

The CLIP, in conjunction with TJSL, at our new campus in San Diego, CA invite you to join us on the8th of April, 2011 for a day of discussion of the intricacies and effects of the TRIPS agreement on global intellectual property.

Please visit our website at http://www.tjsl.edu/law-intellectual-property/trips-symposium for additional information and registration.

If you would like to assist as a sponsor for the event, please contact Jennifer McCollough for more information.

Various corporate and non-profit sponsors to be announced at a later time.

Brought to you by:
Thomas Jefferson School of Law
TJSL Center for Law and Intellectual Property
Center For Global Legal Studies
TJSL Intellectual Property Law Association

Copyright © TJSL International IP Symposium 2011 All rights reserved.
TJSL International IP Symposium 461 H Avenue San Diego, California 92124

MailChimp