Congratulations to TJSL’S 2013 Peggy Browning Conference Participants

Rosanna Barajas (3L) and Michael Arellanez (2L) have been selected to represent Thomas Jefferson School of Law at The Peggy Browning Fund’s Fifteenth Annual National Law Students Workers’ Rights Conference at the Conference Center at the Maritime Institute (just outside Baltimore, MD) on October 25 – 26, 2013. The Peggy Browning Fund is a nonprofit organization named after a prominent labor attorney and vigorous supporter of workers’ rights. Both students exemplify a strong commitment to public interest law and workplace justice, and will join other conference participants from law schools across the country.

“TJSL has sent two participants to the Workers' Rights conference for the last several years,” said Professor Susan Bisom-Rapp, who teaches Labor Law and Global Workplace Law at TJSL and is a member of the selection committee. “Our students have represented us well. At the same time, the conference provides our students with an incomparable training and networking opportunity. Rosanna and Michael each exhibit the kind of passion and analytical sophistication necessary to excel in a career in this area.”

TJSL Professor Rebecca Lee also is a member of the selection committee and said, “It is exciting to work with the Peggy Browning Fund in sending student representatives from TJSL to the conference each year. We appreciated reviewing all of the applications and are pleased to offer both Rosanna and Michael this valuable experience as a way to further build on their impressive activities toward a career in labor and work law.”

Barajas’ exposure and interest in labor law started as a child when she first learned of Cezar Chavez’ work and by witnessing her parent’s work as farm workers and factory workers.

“I feel extremely honored and grateful to have been selected to represent TJSL at the Peggy Browning Fund Workers' Rights Conference,” said Barajas. “My parents have been my inspiration to be an advocate for others, particularly low-wage workers who face exploitation in the workplace but are afraid or unable to fight mistreatment. Employment and labor law violations are more common and serious than one may imagine, hurting both the workers and their families. This conference will provide me with further education as to how to bring justice in the workplace to protect these workers and their families.”

Barajas also has gained extensive experience in employment law issues working as a legal secretary and paralegal for eight years prior to coming to law school, as an intern with Stratton and Green, ALC, and by working with TJSL Professor Luz Herrera on research regarding wage claims.

Arellanez is the son of a union member and a former business representative for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. Since his first year of law school, he has been working with Brunn & Flynn Attorneys, where he has had the opportunity to draft and file complaints with the National Labor Relations Board and Department of Fair Employment and Housing.

“I would like to thank TJSL for the privilege of attending the conference in order to gain a better perspective of the important issues advocates of workers’ rights are facing,” said Arellanez. “Labor law is a dynamic area of practice with great opportunity for personal and professional growth. It involves overlapping concepts from core classes offered to law students and unique avenues for resolving client issues. Labor law issues serve as a reminder that legal and important political changes have an impact on the lives and health of all Americans.”

The trip to the conference is being funded by TJSL and the Peggy Browning Fund. For more information about The Peggy Browning Fund, please visit www.peggybrowningfund.org or contact TJSL’s Career Services Office.
The dedicated members of the Moot Court Honor Society spent their first weekend back in school competing in a two part intra-team competition on Saturday, August 24. The competition was facilitated by the Moot Court Honor Society Executive Board: Chair, Paul Hefley (3L); Vice-Chair, Kimberly Roth (3L); Competition Coordinator, Rodney Eales (3L); Administrative Coordinator, Shantelee Christie (3L); and Legal Community Liaison, Yvonne Ruiz (3L).

“It’s important to give new members a competitive experience before actually competing in an out of school competition that represents the school and works to bring the members closer together as they all share in the experience,” said Eales.

“It also allows the society to prepare our new members for this year’s competitions by making them become self-sufficient in the brief writing process,” explained Ruiz.

Current moot court members mentored and guided new members over the summer during the brief writing phase. The oral argument phase gave competitors a chance to argue both sides as petitioner and respondent. The case involved an uncooperative defendant in a murder trial whose attorney pursued a strategy of admitting the crime during the guilt phase of the trial in an effort to gain credibility and sympathy in the penalty phase to avoid a death sentence. The issues were whether this strategy is ineffective assistance of counsel when pursued without the explicit approval of the client and whether such ineffectiveness is reversible per se or requires a showing of actual prejudice.

"We were very pleased with the quality of the oral arguments," said Hefley. The competitors clearly spent a lot of time thinking through the legal issues and preparing their arguments. We’re excited about the talent our new members bring to the team."

The top 4 competitors advanced to the final rounds based on their brief and oral argument scores. Fierce competitor Mahna Pourshaban (2L) achieved first place for the second time in a row in an intra-mural competition, Matthew Monaco (2L) was awarded second place, and Roselyn Aquino (2L) and Kelly Mourning (2L) were semi-finalists. Awards were also given for the best briefs. Kelly Mourning was awarded first place and Jacqueline Palacios (2L) was awarded second place.

“This competition was a beneficial experience because I was able to strengthen my writing skills,” said Palacios.

First place winner Mahna Pourshaban said that she joined the team primarily because her mom thought her speaking skills were not up to par with everything else she had to offer. “I guess she was wrong,” said Pourshaban. “I attribute much of my success to my courtroom ‘swag’ –started from the bottom now I’m here,” she joked.

“But kidding aside I look forward to working with all the fantastic people on the moot court team this year and I am hopeful that we will win many competitions.” said Pourshaban. “This competition was exciting because we had a number of judges from the legal community, which added a little extra pressure on me to give a stellar performance.”
A recent paper by TJSL Professor Steve Semeraro has been cited in a crucial expert report ordered by the Eastern District of New York in a class action case against Visa and MasterCard, In re: Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation.

"The case is a class action consisting of virtually all merchants that accept credit cards against Visa and MasterCard," explained Professor Semeraro, who is a former attorney for the Department of Justice Antitrust Division.

"The lead plaintiffs’ counsel and the defendants have reached a $7.5 billion dollar settlement agreement. In class actions, settlements must be approved by the court to protect the interests of all class members. Shortly after this one was entered, more than half of the name plaintiffs and most large merchants and merchant organizations opposed it. The court thus appointed an expert to assess the value of the settlement in light of the claims in the case and submit a report." On September 12, the court will hold a fairness hearing to determine whether to approve or reject the settlement.

"I am obviously pleased," Professor Semeraro said, "that Professor Sykes made use of my paper in preparing his report. This is a challenging case with a lot more at stake than even the $7 billion dollar settlement. The court’s decision is likely to shape the future of payment systems."

When he worked for the DOJ, Professor Semeraro led a civil antitrust investigation of the Visa and MasterCard networks that led to a law suit establishing the right of banks to issue American Express cards without losing their right to issue Visa and MasterCard cards. He currently serves as the antitrust and competition expert for the Ethics & Compliance Alliance. At TJSL, Professor Semeraro teaches courses in antitrust, intellectual property and competition law, and property.

Starting Women’s Football plus an Update Regarding Head Injuries and Developments in Sports Law

Universities across the country continue to struggle to comply with Title IX and provide women with opportunities to participate in intercollegiate athletics. The NCAA has suggested adding opportunities for women in bowling, equestrian and rowing. States like Florida, however, sponsor strong and growing interscholastic women’s football programs. Which is the better approach? That issue and more will be discussed at this Conference presented by the Center for Sports Law and Policy at the Thomas Jefferson School of Law. The law school will issue its first white paper regarding women’s intercollegiate football, which examines whether the NCAA, NAIA and other intercollegiate athletic associations should sponsor women’s football. The white paper concludes that women’s football will help solve Title IX issues, increasing participation opportunities for women, in a manner that is racially equitable and will address the kind of stereotyping that often occurs in athletic opportunities for women.

The second session of the Conference deals with the continuing problem of head and related injuries in sports at all levels: professional, intercollegiate and interscholastic. Leaders at these levels will discuss the latest developments and how together we can best address these serious issues in the future.

9/4/2013 Room 227
Back to School and Back on Track
This workshop provides an overview to the Writing Center Workshop Series. Students will learn about the process of law learning, Bloom’s taxonomy (development of higher order thinking skills), evidence-based effective study habits, evaluating past semester study habits and whether the study habits were effective in creating the desired outcome. Students will focus on the process of outlining – when to start, how to get started, and what to include. Students will have the opportunity to modify an “ineffective” outline to an “effective” outline.

9/18/2013 Room 227
Transitioning to Legal Writing II (from Objective to Persuasive Writing)
This workshop begins with a brief lecture on the basics of legal writing, including inferential analysis and analogical reasoning and helps students transition from using these strategies in an objective writing context to a persuasive writing context.

SATURDAY, 9/14/2013 Room 323 - 9 to 12 noon
Multiple Choice Workshop
This workshop will focus on effective strategies and tactics for multiple choice questions. Further, students will review rules for using a semicolon effectively.

10/23/2013 Room 227
GRAMMAR BOOTCAMP #2: Writing in Agreement
This workshop focuses on correct writing skills, and specifically, subject-verb agreement, subject-noun agreement, verb tense, parallel structure and possessives. Students will complete practice problems to reinforce correct writing and agreement.

This workshop focuses on evaluating and correcting midterm mistakes, bolstering student confidence in exam skills after disappointment, and looking ahead to finals. The workshop uses research on deliberate adjustments – critically examining mistakes, understanding how mistakes were made, coaching on how to correct mistakes, and practice application of corrections. Students will participate in reviewing and critiquing a student midterm essay exam.

For years, the Thomas Jefferson Veterans Legal Assistance Clinic (TJVLAC) has helped struggling veterans affiliated with the Veterans Village of San Diego recovery program with a wide range of legal issues. Unfortunately, the TJVLAC has not been able to provide any assistance to the broader community of veterans struggling with various legal needs. Since March 2013, the TJVLAC has offered monthly, self-help, or limited assistance clinics to a broader range of low to moderate income veterans who are representing themselves in various legal matters. The TJVLAC is seeking volunteer law students to help staff such clinics. This is a great opportunity for law students who have not had the chance to enroll in the TJVLAC to get “hands on,” “real world” experience working with actual lawyers and actual veterans.

No particular course prerequisites or state bar certification are required in order to participate. However, students do need to participate in this training session, as well as view an MCLE class that is available online. The MCLE class focuses on the substantive issues that are likely to arise in the clinic. This session will focus on client interviewing and counseling skills, particularly in the context of self-help or limited legal assistance clinics. Space is limited.

TJSL Hosts “Supreme Court Preview” Panel on September 17

The San Diego Lawyer’s Chapter of the Federalist Society, the TJSL Federalist Society and the Federal Bar Association are co-sponsoring a “Supreme Court Preview” panel on Tuesday, September 17, from 11:45-12:50 in room 225.

TJSL Professor Bryan Wildenthal will be on the panel accompanied by local Professors Glenn Smith and Michael Ramsey. Professor Smith of California Western School of Law is the creator of a nationally-recognized seminar that teaches law students about the Supreme Court. Professor Ramsey of the University of San Diego School of Law clerked for Justice U.S. Supreme Court Associate Justice Antonin Scalia.

“This is an exciting preview of all the hot button issues the court may decide next year, said Professor Wildenthal. “If you thought this year was great, stay tuned,”

Panelists will discuss cases the court has or may grant Certiorari on for the upcoming term beginning in October. Some of the anticipated topics include: political campaign finance, Indian gaming, derivatives under the Immigration and Nationality Act, age discrimination, affirmative action, abortion-inducing drugs, the separation of church and state, and presidential recess appointments.

The Hon. Larry Alan Burns will be moderating this event. Judge Burns was nominated by President George W. Bush and currently serves as a Federal District Judge for the Southern District of California. Most recently, Judge Burns was selected to be a visiting Federal District Judge for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals to preside over the trial of Jared Lee Loughner. Loughner was sentenced to life after pleading guilty to 19 murder and attempted murder charges in connection to his shooting spree that severely injured Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords and fatally injured the late U.S. District Court Judge John Roll.

Lunch and 1 hour CLE credit will be provided.

Vision Statement: The purpose of the Crawford Law Institute & Mentorship Bond (CLIMB) program is to stimulate the minds of youth that have expressed a keen interest in the legal profession. Through a collaborative effort between the youth participants from Crawford High School and a staff composed of Thomas Jefferson School of Law students, faculty, and affiliates, participants get the chance to broaden their vision and develop the skill set necessary to excel in their professional lives.

Mission Statement:
- Teen Court affords participants the opportunity to gain simulated legal experience while reaching out to youth already involved in the juvenile court system by providing them a chance to expunge their legal record through compliance with the program.
- One hour each week, community leaders share their stories of overcoming adversity as well as providing insight on how to meet challenges head-on that they may encounter in their professional endeavors through a series of interactive presentations.
- Youth are enlightened on the subject of professional decorum and are provided with the opportunity to create their overall goal and a vision, with practical steps to achieve that goal.
- Culture Nights assists the youth in building critical thinking skills and expose them to a number of viewpoints that may not be readily available for them in the cultural mainstream. Through the use of music, movies, poetry, comedy, books, speeches, plays, and other relevant forms of media the youth is presented with ideas that challenge conventional thinking and make them think outside the box.
- Incentives for Intellectuals incentivize the youth into competing in a number of academic challenges. A culture-themed academic challenge is presented to the youth in order to take on a thought provoking challenge and even stimulate their creativity.
- Educational Explorations allows the youth to visit a number of locations that satiate their curiosity as well as enhance their professional aspirations. Real-world exposure to a variety of legal jobs, observation of professional settings, and cultural experiences such as plays and sporting events throughout the area that enable participants to experience certain aspects of life that they have yet to be exposed to.
