Congratulations to TJSLS Peggy Browning Fellows!

Ben Lewis 3L and Ian Seruelo 2L will represent Thomas Jefferson School of Law at The Peggy Browning Fund's Fourteenth Annual National Law Students Workers’ Rights Conference at the Conference Center at the Maritime Institute (just outside Baltimore, MD) in October 12 – 13, 2012. Both students exemplify a strong commitment to public interest law and workplace justice and will join other conference participants from law schools across the country.

“I am excited that I was selected,” said Seruelo. “This workers’ rights conference is a great opportunity and I look forward to having a deeper understanding of issues facing American and foreign workers and learning how I can be a more effective advocate for labor.”

The Peggy Browning Fund is a nonprofit organization named after a prominent labor attorney and vigorous supporter of workers’ rights.

“I am honored by the invitation to attend the Workers’ Rights Conference,” says Lewis. “I was chosen based on my level of interest and prior experience in labor and employment law. I worked for a nonprofit employment rehab center several years ago and I have always been interested in workplace rights and employment law.”

Lewis recently completed an internship with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commissions (EEOC) in Baltimore, where he worked on the research and analysis of three federal employee claims. He also served as a certified legal intern with TJSLS’s Small Business Law Clinic.

Seruelo has extensive experience advocating for workers and marginalized populations through journalism and research with other public interest organizations in the Philippines. Now, as a Liaison Officer with the Philippine-based Labor Party, he is working with Filipino migrant workers here in the U.S. who are victims of fraudulent recruitment schemes.

“It is an honor to represent TJSLS in a gathering of students from different law schools all over the country,” says Seruelo.

The keynote speaker at this year’s conference is Craig Becker, General Counsel of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO) and a former member of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB).

The trip is being funded by TJSLS and the Peggy Browning Fund. For more information about The Peggy Browning Fund, please visit www.peggybrowningfund.org or contact Maysa Eissa, Esq. in Career Services.
Excitement is building for the 2012 National Sports Law Negotiation Competition and Sports Law Symposium that will be held at Thomas Jefferson School of Law the weekend of September 28 – 30. This marks the second year of this prestigious competition that features teams from top law schools across the nation.

The success and rapidly spreading reputation of the inaugural competition in 2011 has resulted in twice the number of participating teams for 2012. This year, 80 students will comprise 40 teams representing 28 different law schools, including Harvard, Notre Dame and UC-Berkeley. They will compete by negotiating real sports law issues in an academic setting.

The keynote speaker for this year’s event is sports super-agent Leigh Steinberg, who is often credited as the inspiration for the 1996 hit movie “Jerry Maguire.” During his 30-year career, Steinberg has represented more than 150 professional athletes, including Steve Young, Troy Aikman and Oscar de la Hoya.

“NSLNC is going to be a great set of events this year because we have expanded on what the teams and public enjoyed last year while fine-tuning the entire competition,” said Jeremy Evans ’11, NSLNC’s Board Director who also is the event’s founder. “Leigh Steinberg is a legend in the sports industry and having him and 28 law school teams from across the country here in San Diego is truly a pleasure and an honor. We look forward to taking the competition to an even higher plateau.”

On Saturday, September 28, the competition officially kicks off and will challenge the participating teams with recent issues in sports law and negotiations. Saturday night’s program includes meeting the competition’s judges, including volunteers from San Diego’s legal community, and the keynote address by Leigh Steinberg. The NSLNC Board also will announce the finalist teams. Later Saturday night, there will be a complimentary mixer in the famous Gaslamp District of downtown San Diego for all guests and participating law students.

Sunday’s program will include the championship final round of the competition and TJSL’s 11th Annual Sports Law Symposium, featuring sports agents, professionals and others who will discuss hot legal topics in the sports world. Teams and guests will have time later on Sunday afternoon to explore “America’s Finest City.” The public is invited to attend the symposium. Tickets are $55 for the general public and can be purchased through the NSLNC website. Discounted tickets are available for members of the San Diego County Bar Association and the TJSL community. Law students may purchase tickets for $25.

“The competition has grown in just two years to become the premiere and only Sports Law Negotiation Competition in the world,” says Jeremy Evans. “We look forward to further growth and giving back to the law students and sports community, providing trained and well-equipped lawyers and agents to better manage clients, employers, athletes, ball clubs, etc.”

The competition is co-sponsored by TJSL’s new Center for Sports Law and Policy, directed by Distinguished Professor Rodney Smith, the co-author of a widely used sports law casebook, a former member of the N.C.A.A. Division I Athletics Certification Steering Committee and a frequent commentator on sports law issues.

TJSL’s Student Org Fair is a Great Success

The Student Org office was overflowing on Wednesday, August 29, with organization members and students interested in learning more about individual student orgs at Thomas Jefferson School of Law.

“I honestly did not show up with the intention to join any organizations,” said Thomas Gennaro 1L. “I needed a study break and thought I would just grab a sandwich and check it out...Free food, why not?”

But to Gennaro’s surprise, he says he ended up joining an organization anyway.

“Because of my strong interest in Property Law and economics, I joined the Intellectual Property Law Association. I also joined because Eugene Sismon started the group and he is an intelligent guy to work with.”

Amy Louttit 2L is the Law Students for Reproductive Justice Event Chair and was excited about the turnout: “The Student Organization Fair was a huge success! We recruited a great number of students and heard from many new recruits that they were happy they stopped by our booth, not just to enjoy our Co-President’s delicious chocolate-peanut butter coated pretzels, but to learn more about what we actually do.”

Kelly Hayes 3L is President of Public Interest Law Foundation and also was thrilled by the org fair outcome. "PILF was able to recruit more than 50 new members who are very interested in becoming more involved in the public interest legal field,” she said. "We know this year is going to be a great success for PILF and TJSL!"

OUTlaw Co-President Sara Denton 2L said “It’s always great when you see familiar faces taking time out of their busy schedules to represent and recruit for causes that are important to them. We will all be fellow colleagues one day, and by educating each other about the diversity within our school as well as the important legal issues we are facing, we provide networking opportunities and friendships for the future. We may even learn something new that we didn’t even know we were interested in, and that’s always fun and exciting.”

The student who operate VITA would also like to thank TJSL Professor Chris Guzelian for stepping in as faculty advisor to the clinic this tax season while Professor Richard Winchester was on sabbatical in Tunisia.

VITA is one of several free clinics operated by Thomas Jefferson School of Law. Others include, The Small Business Law Center, The Art & Entertainment Law Protect, the Patent Clinic, the Trademark Clinic and the Veterans Legal Assistance Clinic.

For more information about VITA:

http://www.tjsl.edu/academics/jd-programs/clinical-programs/tax-clinic

Thomas Jefferson School of Law’s student-run Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Clinic (VITA) had a very successful year, helping more than 300 people get their taxes done for free at the clinic.

TJSL’s Tax Society makes tax preparation accessible to individuals who cannot afford it by running VITA, which provides FREE income tax return services to people in the San Diego community.

Now in its 15th year, IRS-certified student volunteers provide free basic income tax return preparation to qualified individuals in local communities. Volunteers inform taxpayers about special tax credits for which they may qualify such as Earned Income Tax Credit, Child Tax Credit, and Credit for the Elderly or the Disabled.

“Our TJSL students volunteers attend an IRS training class and are required to pass an IRS Certification test before prepare tax returns,” said Ana Apacible of TJSL’s Tax Society. “They dedicate time every week from their busy schedule to help students as well a community members in an effort to save them time and money from going to paid tax preparers.”

The VITA Clinic was open 3 times a week for a total of 135 hours.
Professor Cohn Speaks on National Security and Torture

The Campaigning for Human Rights organization invited TJSL Professor Marjorie Cohn to speak on the topic of “National Security and Torture” at the La Jolla Library on Wednesday, Aug. 29.

Professor Cohn, who teaches International Human Rights Law at TJSL, in addition to Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure and Evidence, is a frequent lecturer throughout the world on international human rights and U.S. foreign policy. The former president of the National Lawyers Guild, she also is the author of The United States and Torture: Interrogation, Incarceration, and Abuse and Rules of Disengagement and Cowboy Republic: Six Ways the Bush Gang Has Defied the Law.

Professor Cohn was joined by another speaker, Sam Nejabat, who is the founder of Campaigning for Human Rights. The non-profit organization collaborates with other human rights organizations to disseminate information with the goal of creating change around the world and educating people about human rights violations.

Professor Templin speaks on IP Infringement in China

TJSL Professor Ben Templin recently returned from Tokyo, where he gave a lecture at Waseda University titled “Intellectual Property Infringement in China: Recent Case Studies.” Professor Templin discussed recent statistics on piracy in China and the international intellectual property legal regimes that are exerting pressure on Chinese officials to improve enforcement.

The discussion looked at three recent case studies and the effectiveness of both legal and non-legal strategies in deterring and resolving issues involving intellectual property rights.

The three case studies included: Michael’s Jordan’s trademark infringement lawsuit against Qiaodan Sports, the dispute between Apple Computer and Proview over ownership of the iPad trademark in China, and litigation involving theft of trade secrets by Chinese wind turbine manufacturer, Sinovel. In each case, Professor Templin, who teaches IP, contracts and administrative law, explored whether non-legal strategies would produce better outcomes than criminal prosecution or civil litigation.
An announcement from Professor Kreit, the Director of the Center for Law & Social Justice.

An organization called the New Leaders Council is recruiting fellows for their upcoming Institute and they will be holding an information session specifically for lawyers and law students this coming Thursday. Here is the information from a contact of mine who is on the organization’s board:

The New Leaders Council works to train and support the progressive political entrepreneurs of tomorrow - trendsetters, elected officials and civically-engaged leaders in business and industry who will shape the landscape.

This is achieved primarily through the NLC Institute. The NLC Institute is a program that equips Fellows with the skills, opportunities, and relationships to make change in San Diego.
